A robot huh
Well!
That's right! No use debating it!
Wait a sec!
Heeeey!
Hmmmmm...
That was the reason... An unexpectedly boring end
You get what the situation is, right?
You guys!!
What is it?

Um...No. That is not what it means.
Because he's a robot, it's not strange if his head twists around.
This is why you can't talk with those Optics Club lugs...
That's not our problem!
What did you say?!
Here's the problem: Why would a robot be a transfer student?!
Remember how very accurate he was!
But, but he's a robot
Think of the potential a robot has for the Basketball Club!
Captain...
Hurry and fix it!

No, he's not at the moment...
Senior, is he part of the Optics Club?
No one else is getting this character.
R!
Don't be a stranger!!
You, if you would join the Bosketboll Club...
RUKŌ
Hold up, Senior! Hey!
You'd make a great club member!
The Optics Club would love to have you join!
Pack-mules for photo trip.+1
Typical Senior Towabo

Translation Notes

P. 74 "I, too, can catch." Was originally a reference to a Japanese commercial for an electric organ. The line, spoken by a Japanese wrestler named Giant Baba, went "I, too, can play." The image of a wrestler playing an organ might be one of the less odd things Japan has come up with.

P 79 "Exorcist Tanaka" Tasaka is referring to the famous scene from the 1971 occult film 'The Exorcist.' As R points out, the girl turns her head all the way around while R stops halfway. Clearly not as creepy.
